

Occupational Therapist

Samarra earned her master's in occupational therapy in 2002 from Long Island University in Brooklyn, New York. She has over 18 years of experience providing services to the pediatric population. Most of her work experience occurred within the context of a school-based occupational therapist. She is passionate about helping all children experience success in school goals while increasing self-confidence. Samarra believes that Every Child Has Potential; this belief causes her to think outside the box and do whatever it takes to help all children.

You can find Samarra, spending time with her husband and 4 children in Central Florida. She enjoys writing, having fun, and meeting up with her mommy friends.
